I totally disagreed with the Government's unnecessary and unwarranted prosecution of Microsoft in this case. Microsoft was just being competitive and the other companies couldn't compete and were sore losers. It is a perfect example of the Government run amok.

However, since Microsoft and the Government have agreed to settle, it is probably the best possible deal for all concerned. Further litigation would only prove to be counterproductive and will only drag the issue out for innumerable years to come. Therefore, I support the settlement, not because it is the right thing for Microsoft to do, but it will get this absolutely silly prosecution behind them.
